Personal Essay

Share an essay on any topic of your choice. It can be one you've already written, one that responds to a different prompt, or one of your own design.

One of my greatest goals in life is to help disadvantaged children rise out of poverty. I've been fortunate enough to have all my basic necessities covered throughout my childhood, but it deeply affects me that there are kids my age and younger who go hungry and don't have a comfortable place to sleep at night. It is my hope that I can use my education to make their lives easier.

As I prepare for college, I've thought about ways that I could make a difference in helping our youth, and the answer comes down to using my strengths as a way to lift up others. Over the summer, my mother gave me a book called Clifton Strengths for Students to help me discover how to use those strengths. My top five are harmony, competition, relator, deliberative, and consistency. I can identify all of those qualities in myself, but being able to bring people together, find solutions, and treat everyone fairly are things I take pride in most. Additionally, having a strong academic background in technology and a personal love for the arts will help support my education and pave the way in achieving my humanitarian goals.

During my four years in high school, I've been enrolled in the Academy of Information Technology (AOIT) program. The program is a cohort of students that take regular and IT classes together with technology integrated into the coursework as well as interdisciplinary projects. Not only has this career academy prepared me for a degree, it has opened my eyes to ways that I can apply technology in many areas of life. Whether I am discovering a new software to help homeless kids live a more balanced life, researching ways that they can get better access to digital resources, or creating multimedia to help them learn, I hope to immediately apply my education to this life goal.

Finally, my ultimate goal is to be a philanthropist. My father teaches special education students at a high poverty middle school. When schools had to go virtual last year because of the pandemic, I witnessed the struggles that my father's students had to go through. My school was already teaching on Canvas for a few years and had enough laptops for every student who needed one. But some of my father's students didn't even have internet, or they do virtual class in a closet with a baby crying in the background, for example. Through education, I'm going to use my creative skills to become as successful as possible in order to eliminate those inequities.
